

AARON HADLOW DEFENDS WORLD TITLE WITH WIN AT BWIN.COM KITESURF PRO

Briton Hadlow holds down Langeree and wins World Championship 2006. Pulido and Lenten top today's Big Air Tricks.

Tarifa (Spain), 9 September 2006 – Aaron Hadlow makes his comeback to beat Langeree in the second final and wins the Freestyle of the bwin.com Kitesurf Pro. The second round of Big Air Tricks was dominated by 12 year old Pulido and once again Ruben Lenten.

Hadlow World Champion again

Aaron Hadlow displayed minor weaknesses in the first final of the Double Elimination yesterday but was back on form in today's re-match putting Netherlands Langeree – after all No. 2 of the PKRA World Tour – in his place. By doing so Hadlow not only won the Freestyle but becomes the undisputed Champion of the PKRA 2006, despite the outstanding Tour stop in Brazil. Langeree's fellow countryman Yuri Zoon also made it on the podium of the bwin.com Kitesurf Pro.

Lenten flies high

After the cracking Men's Freestyle another round of Big Air Tricks was held at Valdevaqueros beach. The new competition format, where the height of the jumps make up 70 % of the rating, seems custom made for Ruben Lenten. Jumps up to 15 meters secured the Flying Dutchman, as on Wednesday, first place ahead of Alex Soto. Local hero Jaime Herraiz managed two fourth places earning him third in the overall ranking just behind the 19 year old from the Dominican Republic.

Pulido misses out Top 3

Although the Women's Big Air Tricks were won by Gisela Pulido today, the young Spaniard, underachiving in the Freestyle, didn't make it in the Top 3: The overall win went to the new World Tour leader Grzelinska just ahead of Karolina Winkowska and today's second Angela Peral.
